Headline:
Remaining cold for most with freezing fog in south tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Patchy rain, sleet and snow moving southwards from Scotland into northern England and leading to a risk of icy stretches. Wintry showers affecting northern Scotland. Frosty in the south with freezing fog patches.

Sunday:
Windy in the north with rain moving eastwards, heavy on western hills, and turning milder. Dry in the south but remaining cold, with freezing fog patches slow to clear.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Cloudy and rather mild with rain at times across southern and central parts. Some rain and hill snow at times in the north, but with dry and cold conditions too.
